WHAT DO WE PAY REFORMERS
TO REFORM US?

Estimates Vary, but
All Are High.

How much do the reformers and civic upholders collect in Chicago and mainly in their business of looking after the welfare of the rest of us?

The answer to that question is an elusive one and attempts to furnish it are interesting because of the wide range of estimates by persons whose business it is to know something about collections to maintain reform organizations.

It is supposed that Scott's confession, together with Springer's interest in testifying it and aiding in its preparation, together with a possible investigation of Springer's knowledge of the McElrane moonshine exploits and the discovery of the dynamite plot, will all be thrashed out together when presented before Judge Gemmill, the trial judge.

Judge Gemmill, in sentencing Robert Scott to the penitentiary for life, held that the evidence against Russell was still definite and unchanged. Indeed, Robert, before he was sentenced, declared on oath that he had nothing to do with the murder of Maurer.

This Robert Scott explains in his confession by saying that he testified as he did to save his life and that he now hopes to save his brother's life. In his confession he also claims that himself shot only after Maurer had him down on the floor beating him, and that there was no robbery involved.

EVANSTON BEER FOAMS, JUDGE DUCKS, BUT LATE

Harrison St. Agreed On for New P.O.

Following an unintentional but non-lethal demonstration of the power of Evanston home brew, Magistrate Samuel Harrison yesterday issued a ruling that all bottled beer brought into his court against scofflaws be first opened outside and allowed to foam.

While Gustave Mason, colored, was being tried as a home brewer, City Attorney Irving Stoll took the top from one of the bottles seized by the police. Foam blew out into his eyes and he jerked the bottle neck over so that it was directed at the magistrate. With unjudicial haste the latter ducked behind his desk, but too late to avoid a wetting. Policeman Tony Schultz went to the attorney's rescue and saved a little of the evidence by clamping his jaws over the neck of the bottle. Then he reported it was real beer.

When the excitement and the beer subsided, Magistrate Harrison continued the case until today.

CAR IN WOODS
CLEW TO Eloping
14 YEAR OLD PAIR

Ellsworth, Me., July 23.—(AP)—Lost like "babes in the wood" of fairy tale lore, two fourteen year old elders tonight were awfully at their homes after a futile search of two days had failed to locate the children who left home Wednesday in an automobile which they abandoned in the forest when gasoline gave out.

It is expected that they will soon be starved into returning home.

David Coughlin and Nellie Piper, high school playmates, started on their second elopement within a week with the intention of going to Canada where they could carry on their romance unmolested.

Mr. Lueder said the present loop building will probably be retained by the government. It will be used for federal offices for which there is not sufficient room now, and also a post office for handling mail from the loop district.

According to reports from Washington, the Harrison street site is also favored by Rep. Martin B. Madden (Rep., Ill.), chairman of the appropriations committee, and one of the sponsors of the authorization bill.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 23.—(AP)—The engagement of Princess Dorothy de Croix, daughter of Prince Guillaume de Croix of the Chateau de Bellignies, near Bayay, France, and Louis C. Olyry, a New York banker, was announced today by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Olyry, Lusson of Ardmore. The wedding is to take place at the De Croix chateau on Aug. 11.

FAVOR ON DEBT

Two killers, one armed with a shotgun and the other with a revolver, slipped up to the rear door of a saloon at 6154 South Ashland avenue late last night, pressed their weapons against a screen door and fired. In the room were a dozen men and several women and girls, but all the leaden pellets took effect in the body of John Conlon, 25 years old, 7037 South Green street, a minor figure in the powerful McElrane-Saltis beer combine.

In the crowd of patrons drawing good beer, according to reports made to the police, were Vincent McElrane and his bodyguard, and the investigators theorize that the bullets may have been intended for McElrane.

As Conlon fell, almost instantly killed, the assassins ran to an automobile which had been parked nearby and escaped. The women in the saloon, screaming, broke for the front door, accompanied by their escorts, and when the police arrived only Joseph Spinola of 6400 Justine street, the bartender, remained.

Echo of Double Murder.

Spinola's information was meager, but from it Capt. Paul Wheeler of the Chicago Lawn police station deduced that the killing was the outgrowth of the murders of Frank De Laurentis and John Tuccello, small time bootleggers, last April.

"I was in the front of the saloon drawing beer," Spinola declared. "There was a good bunch in the back room and they were keeping me busy. All at once there was shooting. I couldn't see it. Then it was quiet again and all the people ran out. I went back and found that Conlon was dead. So I called the police."

Spinola was unable to say definitely how many men were in the killing squad, but added that the patrons reported the number as two. This was confirmed by passersby on the outside, who saw the assassins run to the automobile.

Conlon Riddled by Bullets.

Conlon's body was literally riddled by the bullets. One penetrated his head. Eleven shot from the gun were found in his chest and even his feet had been shot.

A few of the slugs which missed him were found imbedded in the walls, and the police believe some of the others in the place may have suffered minor wounds.

Conlon was once sentenced to the Bridewell as a thief and served thirty days.

On March 16, 1926, he was arrested on suspicion, but was released after questioning. At that time he gave the name John Carney, and it was said that he lived at 5545 South Union avenue.

Positive identification of the body was made soon after the killing by his uncle, George Schlosser, with whom he lived.

According to Schlosser, his nephew was a truck driver and earned his living honestly. It was admitted, however, that he was often in the company of Vincent McElrane and of the latter's brother, Frank, before Frank was placed in the county jail.

Police Hold Revenge Theory.

Capt. Wheeler's theory is that friends of Tuccello and De Laurentis, who were shot, were killed by the McElrane gang, shot into the crowd as a measure of revenge.

The bodies of Tuccello and De Laurentis were discovered in a closed automobile in front of the home of Ralph Sheid, another alleged bootlegger.

It was assumed that this was a warning to Sheldon, who had left the McElrane gang, that something similar would happen to him if he disputed the alcohol business with the ruling mob.

Report Finance Farley Due.

From Paris come reports that Mr. Mellon, Mr. Morgan, S. Parker Farley, agent general for reparations; Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and Montagu Norman, governor of the bank of England, are to meet in France, presumably in Paris, within a day or so to discuss means of saving the French finances.

Furthermore, British financiers connected with the five largest banks are laying plans to rescue the French currency as soon as the Paris politicians declare their readiness to surrender control of the treasury to financial experts.

If the terms offered are satisfactory the treasury has authority to enter into a contract for the purchase of the site.

If not, the treasury may resort to condemnation proceedings, which will be handled by the department of justice.

It is hoped that actual construction will start before Jan. 1, 1927.

REED COLLECTS DATA FOR SLUSH INQUIRY MONDAY

Confers with McDonald on Ballot Frauds.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

(Picture on back page.) Charles A. McDonald, special prosecutor for the investigation of the April primary ballot frauds, who has thus far obtained grand jury indictments of 26 men and 10 women for conspiracy to make fraudulent election returns, talked for more than an hour yesterday afternoon with Senator James A. Reed [Dem., Mo.], chairman of the senate committee to investigate election corruption. Mr. McDonald visited the senator at the latter's request in the Senate hotel.

This was one of several preliminary inquiries yesterday by Senator Reed in preparation for the opening of the committee investigation in Chicago Monday morning. The hearings will be held in the federal building. Senator Goff [Rep., W. Va.] is on a vacation and Senator McNary [Rep., Ore.] will be delayed a few days in his arrival. The other three senatorial investigators besides Mr. Reed, King [Dem., Utah] and La Follette [Rep., Wis.] are expected to be at the opening.

Silent on Their Talk.

Neither Senator Reed nor Prosecutor McDonald would talk about their conversation, but the fact that it was long gave rise to the surmise that the investigation of the Illinois primary will take a different course from that pursued in the Pennsylvania primary. In the latter inquiry the investigators revealed tremendous expenditures.

The McDonald inquiry has been primarily into the alleged fraud and cheating in voting and making returns of the votes cast, leaving the impression that the alleged conspirators were influenced by money or other improper means. So far as the public has been informed Mr. McDonald has not obtained much direct evidence of the impropriety of the vote.

HUNDREDS FACE JAIL TERMS IN ELECTION FRAUD

All Officials Involved to Be Summoned.

Proceedings to jail every judge and clerk of election who participated in the wholesale vote thievery exposed in the recount of primary ballots will be commenced at once, it was officially announced yesterday by Joseph B. Fleming, attorney for the board of election commissioners, and Edward N. Heth, special prosecutor, both in the grand jury vote fraud investigation.

Contempt of court charges, for which the precinct officials may be given a jail term of six months, are to be brought before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, the attorneys declared, and Mr. Fleming revealed that already citations have been drawn against 25 of those accused. Judge Jarecki is to summon the officials today or Monday. Mr. Fleming announced.

Hundreds to Be Summoned.

In an effort to restore the almost lost right of franchise of the people of Cook county, the prosecution demands that they proceed against every voter and clerk in all precincts where the recount has proved indisputably that a fraud was committed. Hundreds of the officials will be summoned in this manner, Mr. Fleming estimated.

Support of the plan to cite the accused officials for contempt has been given in a decision by the Illinois Supreme Court, which was handed down yesterday.

Judge Jarecki had full power to punish precinct judges and clerks summarily for contempt of his court.

All the officials are appointed directly by Judge Jarecki and become officers of the court, the same as judges and court clerks, and as such may be punished without jury trial and sentenced to jail for misconduct in their trust.

One More Escape Avenue.

"Who will be the first witness?" he was asked.

"I do not know; that is not important," he replied, and then went on:

"We have not pre-judged anybody's case. All the committee wants to do is to be fair and impartial, and, as far as time and circumstances will permit, thorough."

It is probable that among the early witnesses will be the senatorial candidates if they are able to appear. Frank L. Smith, Republican victor, is believed fit after his recent operation, but Senator William B. McKinley has been ill in Washington for some time. George E. Brennan, the Democratic nominee, is in campaign health, being on tour of the state.

Mr. Brennan has been quoted as saying: "No candidate can make the senatorial race on less than $300,000." Presumably this refers to the campaign for election, because in the primaries he had no real opposition.

It has been charged in Washington that both Mr. Smith and Senator McKinley spent much more than $300,000 each in the April primary. The maximum figure mentioned is $1,500,000.

TWO SLAIN FROM AMBUSH IN ROW OVER LAND SALE

Grand Rapids, Minn., July 23. (AP)—While in the act of removing a condemned land for sale sign from state highway Number 1 near here this afternoon, Sigurd Ide, 30, and Alvin Toft, 21, road patrollers, both of Ide, Minn., were slain from ambush by an unknown assailant.

When the bodies were found by a passing tourist, Ide was grasping the sign with both hands. Toft was lying in the ditch about 150 feet away, clutching one empty and two loaded gun shells, believed to have been wrested from the slayer.

John Westblade, a farmer, is being sought tonight in connection with the double murder. The sign, according to reports, was posted by Westblade late last night and before the subversives could reach the farmer and highway officials, it was said, and Westblade had been ordered to remove it from the highway right of way.

Boy Badly Hurt in Row with Mother Over Theft

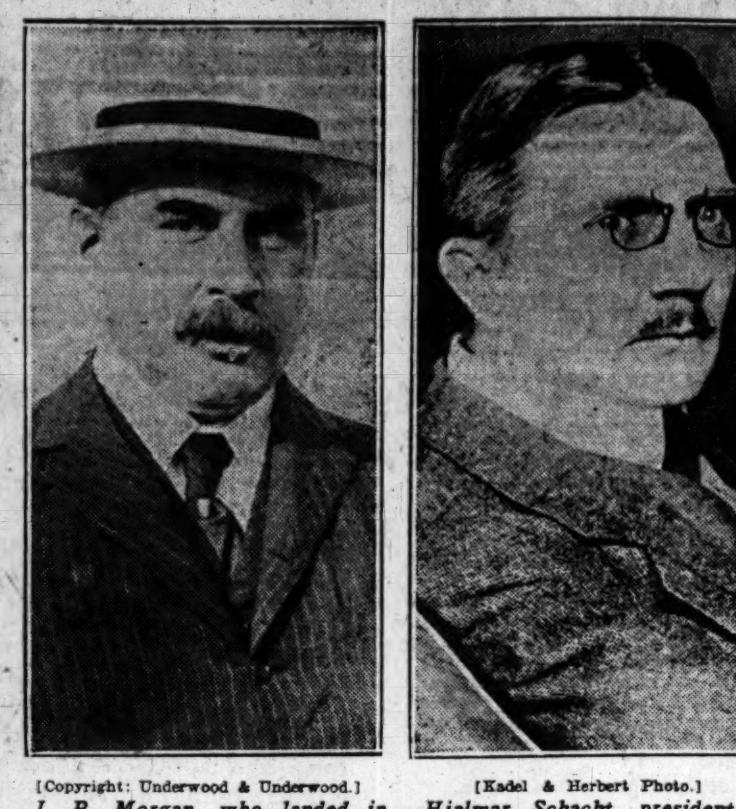

Enraged because her 10 year old son, Joe, entered the house like a burglar, Sigmund Ide, 30, and Alvin Toft, 21, road patrollers, both of Ide, Minn., were slain from ambush by an unknown assailant.

In the scuffle he was struck him over the head with a heavy glass bowl yesterday evening. The boy was taken to the Keystone hospital suffering from skull fracture and concussion of the brain. His mother is held at Shakespeare avenue police station.

FIREFLIES THAT STAY "LIT UP" ARE SCIENCE'S LATEST CONTRIBUTION

New York, July 23.—[Special]—Fireflies that glow all the time, thanks to short-circuiting injections of adrenaline, are the latest contribution of science. William S. Creighton, Princeton graduate student, who is working under the direction of Dr. Frank E. Lutz, curator of entomology and director of the American Museum of Natural History, invented for the study of insects the Harriman state park.

Mr. Creighton has found in the course of his studies of the nature of firefly light that heavy "shots" of adrenaline, administered with a syringe between the firefly's body segments, changed the intermittent flashing characteristic of these insects to a sustained luminosity. In some instances he has kept individual insects "lighted up" twenty-four hours, but these specimens invariably died, presumably through expenditure of too much vital energy.

McDermott, who opposed Brennan.

The Republican recount for senator continued to indicate that the votes had been honestly tabulated, 25 precincts in the 50th ward showing a loss for Senator William B. McKinley of only 31 votes, and a gain of only 13 votes. This margin could be allowed for excusable mistakes, it was held.

Cases Are Dismissed on Technicality.

CRIMINAL COURT. Stanley Dunn, Michael Rehnfeldt, and Edward Fegel, robbery, sentenced to 3 to 10 years each in the penitentiary by Judge Thomas J. Lynch.

John McGuire, Angelo Cargiano, Gus Peterson, and Stanley Wackowski, robbery, sentenced to 10 years to life each in the penitentiary by Judge William N. Heth.

Following the dismissal of seven men, three of them policemen, and all charged with burglary, by Judge Henry M. Walker in the Shakespeare avenue court on a technicality, the Chicago crime commission, through one of its members, advised the police yesterday recommended that the whole matter be placed with State's Attorney Crowe for immediate investigation.

The charges involved John Manion, police policeman; Philip Lorenz and Walter Farrell, patrolmen, and four private watchmen. Howard Blair, Alfred Wood, Alden Baughman, and Charles Becker, who were alleged to have burglarized business houses in the west side wholesale dry goods district, obtaining goods valued at $1,000, before their arrest on June 9.

Acted Without Warrants.

Arraigned yesterday on these charges, a motion to suppress the evidence was presented on the grounds that police, under the direction of Capt. Patrick Harding, in searching the defendants' homes for stolen property had obtained some articles of clothing alleged to have been taken, but had acted without search warrants.

When this motion, presented by Attorney John Lee for the three policemen, was denied, Justice John Walker told the prosecutor attached to his court, Assistant States Attorney Harold E. Durham, if he could site any law decisions to counteract the motion, but the attorney could find no legal substantiation for further prosecution.

The court then dismissed the seven and directed the property be returned to them, although a part of it had been identified by police, whom it was said, had not yet been taken.

In announcing his decision Judge Walker said he could not encourage entrances into homes without search warrants without violating the law that makes such a procedure necessary.

"I have requested the assistance of the state's attorney's office and have explained my position to the Chicago crime commission before coming to this decision," he said.

Wanda Facts Uncovered.

When informed of the court's action by one of his investigators, Mr. Hanna said: "Capt. Harding and other police officers, who had issued search warrants, thereby not making proper attempts to collect the evidence, should be made answerable to the civil service commission. The crime commission did not advise Judge Walker as to his procedure in this case, and, furthermore, when policemen have been stripped of their stars and guns as a charge such as this, the matter should not be dismissed on a mere technicality."

RUM PATROL'S CANNON FIRE PERILS SCORES

With his head crushed, the body of Harry King, 57, year old watchman for the Schwartz Picture Frame company, 2100 Walnut street, was found yesterday in the washroom of the plant by employees arriving for work.

A search revealed that the offices of the company had been looted, and the men who sat behind the desks and directed the frauds. The underlings who obeyed orders may expect leniency if they will confess and implicate their leaders, it was stated.

Prosecutor Heth, who was nominated by the board of managers of the Chicago Bell Telephone association as an associate to Special State's Attorney Charles A. McDonald, in charge of the vote fraud inquiry, has been loaned to the County court in the hope that he may uncover evidence there which will lead to indictments by the special grand jury of the so-called higher-ups.

Call Defend One First.

Many judges and clerks, principally those in the notorious 20th ward dominated by Morris Eller, sanitary district trustee and Crook-Barrett leader, have defected to the special grand jury, which will be among the first to be seated before Judge Jarecki, the attorney declared.

Eller was named in a subpoena compelling him to produce before the grand jury all records pertaining to expenditures of campaign funds in the 20th ward, which evidence he has been sold to a favored slate of candidates of both Republican factions.

YOUTH BETRAYS VAMPIRE AUTOIST AS 2 ARE KILLED

Conscience Hurts; Breaks Pledge of Silence.

The uneasy conscience of Eddie Boding, 17 years old, caused him to supply Hinsdale police yesterday with information that resulted in the arrest of Carlton Glenn, automobile salesman, charged with driving a vampire automobile which ran down and killed two men on the Naperville highway between Dowers Grove and Hinsdale late Thursday night.

The young asker Glenn for a lift in his automobile at Westmont, Ill., as the salesmen was on the point of leaving for Hinsdale. Riding through the night at a high rate of speed, the car struck an obstruction in the road and skidded to a stop, young Boding said.

He and Glenn investigated and found that the car had struck Kuly Vulches, 35 years old, of La Grange, and Thomas Tate, 32 years old, of Centralia, Ill., workers in an excavation where they were repairing a gas main. Both men had been instantly killed.

Please for Youth's Silence.

"For God's sake, don't say anything about this," Glenn pleaded with his companion, the latter said. "I'm a married man and this will get me into all sorts of trouble. The auto then proceeded. A passing motorist found the bodies.

Boding promised to remain silent, but the following morning he was unable to keep the secret any longer. He told Maj. H. B. Stafford, chief of the Hinsdale police, of the accident. Glenn, who said he lives at 55th street and Franklin avenue, Chicago, was arrested in Westmont and held in jail pending the inquest today.

Two men died as a result of injuries received in automobile accidents in Cook county. The 1926 motor toll was raised to 455.

Driver Killed in Truck Crash.

Louis Michelsen, 42 years old, 1749 North Wood street, died at Henrotin hospital of a skull fracture received when the front axle of a truck he was driving collapsed and pitched him headlong to the pavement at Grand avenue and Wells street.

John Lemke, 51 years old, 5123 South Racine, died at Englewood hospital of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile at 65th and South Halsted streets. The driver, Mike Sturm, 1727 North Halsted street, admitted his brakes were defective and was held by police.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE TO HUGE WAREHOUSE IN SOUTH STATE ST.

A spectacular fire, believed to have originated from sparks blown from the Illinois Central railroad at 15th street, caused damage estimated by Fire Chief Arthur Seyerlich at $15,000 in the old Union Storage Warehouse building at 154 South State street yesterday afternoon.

The husband also received the custody of the two minor children, Milton and John. Miss Frances Budlong, a daughter, is of age and is living with her father here.

The decree constitutes a legal separation, but not an absolute decree because Budlong has not been a resident of Rhode Island the two years required before an absolute divorce can be asked.

The decree, ending the most recent phase of the long court fight, was granted on the ground of extreme insanity by Mr. Baldwin for the period of years.

The acts on which the complaint was based consisted of "false charges against his character, humiliating remarks in the presence of others, refusal to live with him as his wife and other acts tending to bring him into public ridicule."

FIGHT ON SPEED TRAPS SPREADS TO 34 COUNTIES

Officials Agree to Follow
Chicago's Lead.

By J. L. JENKINS.

(Picture on back page.) Chicago's crusade against automobile speed traps and abuses of vehicle law enforcement has spread to other and court officials leaped its Cook county boundaries yesterday and swept the probe into thirty-four additional counties in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. Spread of the popular movement to give a square deal to motor car owners and operators on the highways came as the result of a conference held by the Chicago Motor club in the Palmer house and attended by state's attorneys from as far south as Iroquois county in Illinois and within a radius of 150 miles of Chicago in neighboring states.

Following the conference, which brought out a vivid picture of the speed trap barriers, the prosecutors adopted a resolution to follow Chicago's lead in completely wiping out the legalized evil and cleaning out every highway graft in the state.

Must Curb the Reckless.

"While making it clear and emphatic that safety on the highways and the strict enforcement of the motor vehicle law to curb the ten per cent of drivers who are reckless on public roads is absolutely necessary," the resolution reads, "this conference of public prosecutors agrees that the fee system allowed for motorists arrests and fines in villages is wrong and that speed traps and evils of motor law enforcement must be eliminated."

We, as state's attorneys, will follow the example set by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and other interested agencies in Cook county in driving grafters and mulchers of motorists off the highways so that motorizing in our territories may be safe for all who travel the roads."

Meeter Outlines Campaign.

Charles J. Mueller, assistant state's attorney, outlined his plan of investigation who with the aid of the Chicago Motor club bureau, has succeeded in bringing in more than 2,000 motorist victims to appear against the trappers and has completed evidence against officials of Broadview and Markham for grand jury action on Tuesday, our first campaign for his down town colleagues.

"We have been bothered with speed traps around Chicago for years," he said, "and have gone after individual cases, but until now we have never been able to get to first base with the prosecutions because of lack of concrete evidence. Our system now changes all that and throws a white light upon activities of highway law enforcement. Thanks to the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Motor club, victims of speed traps found an opportunity to make wholesale reports of village police activities and roadside court abuses.

Hundreds of Complaints.

"Hundreds of complaints came in and definitely fixed the spots in Cook county that needed attention. Knowing just where to look, we seized all arrest and court documents in these spots and the motor club mailed detailed questionnaires to every driver shown on the books. Remaining to the state's attorney's office, this volume of evidence has been tabulated, studied and separated and a dozen individual cases have been selected for the basis of prosecution against each of the traps."

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, offered the prosecutors the entire facilities of his organization and the services of its 50,000 members in their cleanup work. He declared that the campaign is in no way opposing strict law enforcement nor traffic safety, but is rather designed to increase the safety of the public by placing the highways under legitimate police patrol.

State's Attorneys Russell Hanson of La Salle, Mr. L. E. Kunkel of Michigan City, R. W. Bees of Whiteside county, A. V. Smith of Lake county, Glen Thompson of St. Joseph, Mich., and A. H. Shaw of Streator urged co-operation in the campaign and told of their plans to clean up their districts.

CAPTAIN INSISTS HE'S CUPID'S AID AT SEA BY TRADITION; RAPS LAW

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—The ancient customs of the sea mean more than a lawyer's opinion to Capt. Theodore Van Beek, commander of the United States liner President Harding, which arrived today from Europe.

On the eastern passage Capt. Van Beek performed a marriage, and, unperturbed by the ruling of shipping board counsel that captains have no authority to perform marriages, insisted that it was legal.

"It's simply the shipping board's opinion," Capt. Van Beek said. "Suppose I had made it then it would be a ruling, but it is not so just because an ordinary lawyer says so."

The two he married July 8 were Carl Made, a thirty year old widower of Berlin, and Miss Jeannette Seiling, thirty-six, of Brooklyn.

Chides Husband.

The final campaign day was featured by a statement from Gov. Ferguson in which she mildly chided her own husband, former Gov. James E. Ferguson, for failing to hold a state-wide primary for the first time in the state's history. The Republican leaders were not claiming that they would poll a large vote—$6,000 was the highest estimate of the Republican headquarters—but they assert a Republican primary will be held in 200 of the state's 252 counties.

NEBRASKA BANKS FAIL, BUT SAVINGS ARE NEVER LOST

State Points with Pride to 15 Year Record.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—[Special.]—Nebraska proudly displays to the world this record: Depositors have not lost a dollar in a state bank in fifteen years.

Nebraska was one of the first states to emerge from deflation; it did its drawing out of frozen assets early; every state bank that went to the wall paid off a hundred cents on the dollar; bank runs have become unknown; the financial structure, experts say, is more solid than ever.

All this the banking talent ascribes to the state guaranty law for protecting state bank deposits.

Some other states have made a sad mass of bank guaranty laws, notably Oklahoma, which was the greatest advocate of the guaranty idea in the days when Gov. Haskell and "Alfalfa Bill" was for it Jim? Murray carried it to the Bryan convention in Denver in 1908 as the hotly tosby of reform. Oklahoma, once the bank crashes began, found itself hopelessly "in the red" to the tune of millions of dollars and eventually repealed the guaranty act a few years ago.

Escape Political Blunders.

Nebraska, however, kept the bank guaranty out of politics. To this is attributed the success with which it has operated.

Analyzing the bank guaranty situation here as contrasted with other states, the leading bankers say: "Unless properly administered, free from politics, the guaranty law is one of the worst that can be passed; but if properly operated and kept out of politics it is the best."

The guaranty fund comes from the banks, not as many suppose, from the taxpayers. One effect has been to popularize state banks. Today Nebraska has $98 state banks with $255,000,000 deposits and 170 national banks with $200,000,000 deposits.

The guaranty law was adopted in 1905 after much debate at Denver, and there was great skepticism as to whether it would work. It went into operation in 1911.

Depositors Never Lose.

In the fifteen years since then 152 state banks have failed in Nebraska, but of these thirty-six have been maintained as going concerns, leaving 116 taken over.

The 116 bank failures had total deposits amounting to $28,000,000. Every dollar of this was paid, usually with no delay. About forty cents of every dollar of this had come out of the guaranty fund, which means that the state banks paid about $11,000,000 to depositors in banks that were liquidated who otherwise would have lost much of their money. The other $6,000,000 came from the state banks, seven and otherwise.

Bankers Less, Too.

The non-political management of the guaranty funds offers a happy example by that 65 cents realized from assets of failed banks. In national bank failures from 1862 to 1922 the average was only 40 cents on the dollar, and less than 10 cents. The average on failure of all banks in the country, some politicians figure, runs only 30 cents on the dollar.

There is still some $10,000,000 of unliquidated assets turned into the guaranty fund, and it is estimated that about 5 cents more on the dollar will be paid out of this.

It is estimated that in paying the depositors their $25,000,000 in the failed banks 35 per cent will have come out of the fund raised among all the state banks, while 65 will come from bank assets seven and otherwise.

Harris Trust Less, Too.

The non-political management of the guaranty funds offers a happy example by that 65 cents realized from assets of failed banks. In national bank failures from 1862 to 1922 the average was only 40 cents on the dollar, and less than 10 cents. The average on failure of all banks in the country, some politicians figure, runs only 30 cents on the dollar.

By way of contrast to the payment of $28,000,000 in Nebraska's failed state banks, the authorities say there have been eighteen national bank failures in the state in the last fifteen years with deposits aggregating $6,700,000 on which depositors have been paid only $1,700,000, meaning a loss of $5,000,000.

Bank Law as Wonderful Thing.

One still finds some difference of opinion. Some national bankers say it is wrong. In principle, a few state bankers say strong solvent banks have to stand the strain of the weaker ones, but the prevailing opinion is that the guaranty law has been a wonderful thing for Nebraska, and it is being blamed in full page ads as "a story to other state can tell."

To maintain the guaranty fund, the law authorizes an annual levy on the average deposit balance, not on the amount of one-half of one per cent as a special assessment, and a regular assessment of one-tenth of one per cent on average deposits, which now run close to $290,000,000. The maximum yield is about $1,750,000 a year for the fund.

The fund is administered by a commission of bankers appointed by the governor from names submitted by the bankers, and the affairs of failed banks are studied by experts to secure the largest possible return from the disposal of assets.

Grand jury investigation into the murder of Philip Piazza, Chicago Nights cafe owner, vice and alcohol king, who was shot down in front of his Milano Inn, was ordered yesterday by special State's Attorney Charles A. CERMAK DEFENDS FOREST PRESERVE LAND PURCHASES

Agents Made Profits, but No Graft, He Says.

Land deals by which the Forest Preserve district has added to its holdings in the county and which have been attacked by the Citizens association as revealing great money wastes were further defended yesterday by Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board, who answered each specific charge made by the association.

At the same time Christian Krueger, cashier of the First National Bank of Blue Island, in a conference with Mr. Cermak, stated that in every case in which he sold land for the forest preserve it was been at a fair price.

Admits Making Profits.

Mr. Krueger has been cited by the association as a sort of favored middleman, who secured options on forest tracts and sold them at huge profits to the citizens. Cermak said that he had made profits, and good ones. Mr. Krueger cited several instances, however, by which the county, dealing in the same localities with the owners direct, had been forced to pay much higher prices for land no more desirable.

One of the association's charges was that Theodore Huhnstock of Tinley Park had taken a tract through Krueger and had thought it was all going to the forest preserve, but that he had learned a portion of it in question had been deeded by the county to Mrs. Roger C. Sullivan. Krueger informed Mr. Cermak that a portion was sold to the county, and another tract, not wanted by the county, was sold, not to Mrs. Sullivan, but to Walter Bruderer, and with Huhnstock's knowledge and consent.

Small Property at $700.

The Huhnstock property was given to Krueger an option to sell at $400 an acre. He turned it over to the county for $450 an acre. The forest preserve records show of another case, cited by President Cermak, in which the county sought to purchase the land of a Mr. Gilson, in the same locality as the Huhnstock tract. Dealing without any agent, Mrs. Gilson demanded $900 an acre, and she refused an offer of $500. Condemnation proceedings were ordered, and finally Mrs. Gilson settled for $700 an acre, which was $250 an acre more than Krueger obtained. The two deals were pending at the same time.

It is impossible for this board, or any other board, to know or to find out what real estate speculations or schemes are going on by and among or regarding certain lands," Mr. Cermak said.

"I have been unable so far to discover the least irregularity in the purchases of property during this, or during former administrations.

"However, I shall continue my efforts to get the history and the true facts of every deal, and I repeat that our records, files, and documents are open at any time for inspection, to the Citizens association, to the state's attorney, or anybody else who has an interest in investigating the affairs of the district."

Describes Other Transactions.

Two land purchases, closed during the administration of the late President Daniel Ryan, and cited as extravagant by the association, were answered in Mr. Cermak's statement. Purchase of the Snell estate, bought through At-

METHODISTS GET 1794 BLUE LAW WARRANT FOR SESQUI DIRECTOR

Philadelphia, Pa., July 23.—[UPI]—A warrant was served tonight on E. L. Austin, director general of the sesquicentennial exposition, charging violation of the blue law of 1794 in operating the exposition on Sunday. Mr. Austin accepted service and will appear before a magistrate tomorrow for a hearing.

A similar warrant was served on Otto Blumhard, an exhibitor at the sesqui, who also will have a hearing tomorrow. Both warrants were obtained by the Methodist men's committee of 100, which has been active in the fight to keep the sesquicentennial closed on the Sabbath.

Captain Garza, president of the Catholic Young Men's association; Rafael Cisneros, president of the defense league; Luis Bustos, vice president, and Cardinal Mundelein will exhort the congregations to join in the observance of the feast of St. Peter in Chains, on Aug. 1, as a day of universal prayer for the relief of the Catholic church in Mexico.

Mexico Police Seize Church Chiefs on Sedition Charge

BY JOHN CORNIN.

[Chicago Tribune Free Service.] Mexico City, July 23.—Mexican Catholic circles are greatly incensed over the arrest of the president, vice president, secretary, and various members of the League for Religious Defense. The league offices were closed by police.

Captain Garza, president of the Catholic Young Men's association; Rafael Cisneros, president of the defense league; Luis Bustos, vice president, and Cardinal Mundelein will exhort the congregations to join in the observance of the feast of St. Peter in Chains, on Aug. 1, as a day of universal prayer for the relief of the Catholic church in Mexico.

Troops Held Ready.

Mexico City, July 23.—[U.N.]—

Mexican officials make no comment on orders issued by the secretary of war that all federal troops are to remain in their barracks indefinitely. While the move is reported to be part of the government's preparation for further activities against Catholic churches, no mention is made of anticipated trouble.

CATHOLICS HERE TO PRAY.

By means of an episcopal letter which will be read in all Catholic parishes throughout the archdiocese of Chicago tomorrow morning, Cardinal Mundelein will exhort the congregations to join in the observance of the feast of St. Peter in Chains, on Aug. 1, as a day of universal prayer for the relief of the Catholic church in Mexico.

"We are here to pray," the communication reads, "in having on our southern border a country whose government, not content with its attacks on American interests, is now actively engaged in attempting to stamp out religion in general, and the innocent Catholic faith of its people in particular."

BULL RUN.

Sixty-five years ago yesterday THE TRIBUNE sold thirty-six thousand copies and editorially commented on that edition as the "largest of a daily paper ever published in the northwest." It contained the news of the battle of Bull Run.

Some readers of THE TRIBUNE, we are sure, and many we hope, have been following the approach to this military shock as it has been given day by day. They have lived again in the national intensity which went hopefully to the climax of a staggering defeat.

"A breakfast job," our forefathers here in the north said at the beginning of the war and the three months' enlistments were the expression of that confidence. THE TRIBUNE news and editorials for the period reflected the impatience of citizens waiting for the new "grand army," a few weeks or months from the farms, towns and workshops of the north, to smash the rebellion and occupy Richmond. There had been good news from Missouri and better news from western Virginia, where McClellan's successes sustained the belief that all that was necessary was contact with the confederate army. Then this black eye at Bull Run, with a disordered, stamped, disorganized army tearing back into Washington with hardly any leadership or discipline until McClellan was hurried into the capital.

Jefferson Davis found his generals at the start. Lee was at his side when he came to the Bull Run battlefield. Stonewall Jackson told him that it was not a confederate rout as he feared. Joseph E. Johnston had joined Beauregard, and the road through Centreville and Fairfax Court House back to Washington was strewn with the equipment of volunteers who had fought bravely until retreat became a panic.

The breakfast job was on its way for four years and because of the subsequent disasters which each year brought to operations in Virginia we are inclined to forget that in spite of the wise was clamped on the confederacy within a year. In spite of the splendid record of the Army of Northern Virginia under Lee, in spite of the first Peninsula failure, of the second battle of Bull Run, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the constricting envelope of the superior northern strength was about the confederacy. Its coast was contained by the navy and all along its margin the future great generals of the union were silencing and stabbing and cutting their way into the vitals of the south. There were dark days ahead of Grant in the wilderness, but soon after Gettysburg Sherman and Grant from the heights about Chattanooga could see the way opening to the sea at Savannah.

The bloody cup for the north was in Virginia. It is a reflection of interest to consider what might have happened if the two states which furnished, one the greatest American and the other an American of first magnitude, Washington and Jackson, in the days when they hesitated whether to answer the call of the Union or the call of the south, had followed the undeviating principles of their greatest sons, if Virginia had taken its guidance from Mount Vernon and Tennessee from the Hermitage.

ITALY INVITES YOU.

Mussolini has told American correspondents, according to dispatches from Rome, that it is the policy of the Italian government to have Italy welcome American visitors. The Italian people, he said, will try to show their appreciation of the good will of the United States and will try to understand the differences in the customs and habits of the two nations. Some good policies are so simple that it requires genius to discover them and here the genius is a genius.

In this policy THE TRIBUNE is willing to cooperate, beginning with a testimonial to Mussolini himself, as the probable inspiration of it, that the Italian debt settlement has been accepted in Italy for what it is, a generous composition on the part of a well disposed creditor. The singularity of that attitude is indicated by what is being said and done in other parts of the continent and in Great Britain.

The Italians got a favorable settlement but the peculiarity is that they acknowledge it and are not cursing Uncle Shylock. When a people tell the United States that they appreciate considerate treatment it takes us by surprise. There is a good deal about Mussolini that we have viewed with alarm and probably shall have much occasion to do so in the future. Part of it is the war dog's honest bark. Part of it is the old Roman eagle's scream. Part of it is Mussolini's belief that he can do what Cromwell couldn't do and Napoleon couldn't do. We do not believe that there is continuity in government by dictatorial usurpation, but that may be largely Italy's affair.

On the other side of the picture there is the tranquility and sobriety of Italy restored from the greatest anarchy Europe knew outside of Russia. The Fascist attack on the political freedom of the individual we don't like, but that has nothing to do with the American in Italy or is likely to little if Mussolini does not want it to.

American travelers have found that the black shirts have added largely to the comfort and security of travel. We have a number of reports from Americans who have been guarded against importunities and inconveniences. Some of the old Italian nuisances, boggings, poor railroad service, extortion, etc., have been eliminated or largely controlled.

For Americans whose idea of a trip to Europe is a carouson on Montmartre and a headache Italy may be almost negligible, but to the Americans who are in still greater number it is more nearly true that much of Europe outside of Italy is negligible. This department [there is a dissenter minority] is quite persuaded that if it were possible to select one and only one country in Europe for travel or necessary to select one for residence that country would be Italy and the decision rests upon recollections as inadequate as they are poignant.

The English speaking people read the beauty in Italy in all the imagination of their traditions, literature and art. As such it is to many supreme. Nowhere else in the round world have man and nature so collaborated for the creation of beauty and the thrill of innumerable memories—Rome still imperial in her glistening plain, and the towered towns of Tuscany, the blue bays where the Greek galleys put in to build their templed cities, the shadowy canals of Venice and the dreaming beauty of the Euganean hills, the middle ages, lived again in the dark descending streets of Perugia, the resplendent palaces and gay plazas of Perugia, the long roads where the world conquering legions marched to glory.

There is delight for Americans and dollars for Italians in the good Rotarian sign: "Italy in viva."

HALTING GRAFT BY CIVIL ACTION.

The charge has been made by Shelby Singleton, secretary of the Citizens' association, that the county board has wasted approximately $1,000,000 during the past four years by paying exorbitant prices for new forest preserve lands and by buying through favored middlemen. It is proposed to bring the matter to the attention of the grand jury.

This course would, naturally, lead to criminal action were any evidence of fraud discovered. The result would be to place on the dockets of the Criminal court still another case of official grafting.

Whereas, the fact is that there are already so many cases of this type pending that the Criminal court cannot keep up with them. The grand jury system is, at the very moment, tied up with two investigations of the kind, the primary election inquiry and the speed trap inquiry.

It would be the part of wisdom to choose a method in which there would be some hope of quick action. A civil suit to recover any misspent monies would be preferable, in view of the present state of affairs, to a criminal action. Not that criminal action would not be warranted if the facts are as Mr. Singleton has alleged, but that it would be useless from the point of view of practical and immediate results. The cold fact is that no important criminal prosecution of official graft in the county courts within the past few years has been successful.

A civil suit to recover the taxpayers' money is the best way of investigating this forest preserve case and of bringing any guilty persons—if any are guilty—to judgment. It is to be hoped that Mr. Singleton, though he has said he would not take the case before the grand jury, will be willing to go into a civil court. A civil suit does not put any guilty ones in the penitentiary, but it will check graft almost as surely by taking the profit out of such illegal business.

PARLIAMENTARY POLITICS IN A CRISIS.

The predicament of France continues to throw light upon the weakness of the French mechanism of government. The parliamentary system evolved in French republicanism must seem to Americans singularly unfitted to cope with internal crises. Against an external for its weaknesses are to be concealed because the patriotic impulse is unified by external danger. But when the problem is that of domestic policy, the system thrusts solution into the arena of factional and party and personal politics, where deliberation is impossible and practical measures strangled in the ruthless tactics of parliamentary warfare. Our more rigid system, which intrenches the executive for a definite period and endows it with considerable powers, has its faults but for crises it is, we think, much to be preferred to the French.

There are other factors to be taken into account, as for instance, the bloc, the two party system, the character and tradition of our respective peoples. Efficient machinery is important but not the most important consideration. Meanwhile the remarks of the Italian press are interesting, expressing, of course, the ideas of Fascism. The trouble lies in "the antiquated and inherent weakness of parliamentary government." The problem is one of "will, faith and strength." "What France needs is a man," etc.

Undoubtedly a dominating personality would help France at this moment and democracies are supposed to produce them at need.

Editorial of the Day

QUIBBLING DEBTORS.

(Lansing, Mich.) State Journal]

Once more Europeans are finding it the moral duty of the United States to cancel the war debt of its former allies. Much of this same idea was heard after the war, but during the past year Europe seemed to be resigned to its indebtedness and even eager to pay. This ardor seems to have cooled quickly.

Speaking in the house of commons, Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, joins in the ill-natured observations of other European spokesmen on America's insistence that Europe pay its debts. The British cabinet officer very generously blames this country for the debt burdens and financial troubles of Europe. Europeans may soon admit the United States started the war.

Churchill is dead wrong in placing responsibility for conditions in Europe. Those conditions are the result of devastating war forced on the world either by the stupidity or the cupidity of a crippled world statesmanship. Wars cost money, and it is not by accident that the war was fought in Europe. During the war the European belligerents were extremely willing to borrow money from Uncle Sam and did not quibble over interest rates and repayment. Then the allies were begging for money and this country saved them. What a friend indeed is the lender until the expiration of his loan makes him a creditor!

Under the Italian debt settlement plan Americans taxpayers will assume three billions of Italy's debt, but only two billions for the Italian taxpayers to pay. Perhaps the Europeans do not know that the money they borrowed was first borrowed by the United States government from its citizens and that those citizens must be repaid either by the European borrowers or the American taxpayers.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE WITH DROPSY.

THE person who has Bright's disease should live on a diet which differs radically from that used by a person with Bright's but without dropsy. In Bright's disease without dropsy the trend of opinion is toward a rather free diet with a considerable allowance of meat and other protein foods. However, the urine should be kept alkaline or nearly so.

In Bright's disease with dropsy the majority of physicians make use of a diet very low in salt and restricted as to meat and other protein foods. F. M. Allen believes in restricting the salt in the food to the point where the urine does not contain more than ten grains per salt per day.

Keith, Smith, and Whelan make use of a diet which is very much restricted as to common salt, minerals, and water. The common advice not to drink much water, tea, coffee, or other beverage does not go far enough, since many of the foods eaten are rich in water. A diet with dropsy may be drinking very little water and getting more fluids than needed.

They start with a base diet of about 26 ounces of fruits and vegetables, about three ounces of bread, and two-thirds of an ounce of dry cereal. This base diet they build up by adding enough fats and sugar to bring the calories up to about 1,500.

The water pipes.

Mrs. E. F. A. writes: As I must replace piping for cold water, what is the safest kind to install in place of rusted and galvanized iron or brass?

REPLY.

I think galvanized iron safest, though most places lead pipe is safe.

FOR INSOMNIA VICTIMS.

W. J. says that experience has taught her how brain workers who are troubled with insomnia can find relief.

If they will take walks after working hours, or do some physical work outdoor indoor, in order to get physically tired, they will find it not hard to get sleep.

Eating a light supper promotes sleep. A heavy one may prevent it.

A RACING HEART.

P. H. T. writes: The doctors say I have tachycardia—a racing heart. As I count it the beats run 150-200 a minute.

REED.

What makes it race? Among possible causes are excessive use of tobacco, some form of goiter, nervousness, some form of disease.

When you have found the cause you are set to find the cure, but not before.

PUBLIC NUISANCE.

Chicago, July 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—By what authority do several of the large movie houses in the loop use the public sidewalk as a box office, thereby creating a nuisance for pedestrians?

This is particularly true of a theater

L. O. W.

We assume that you refer to their permitting protective patrollers to line up on the sidewalk. We would not call this using the sidewalk as a box office and we have not seen traffic seriously obstructed thereby.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It is well ascertained now that the killed at the battle of Manassas on Union side, in the first fight of 1,000. The rebels did not follow the retreating Union army north of Bull's Run.

The utmost excitement prevails at Alexandria where the citizens expect an advance by the rebels within 48 hours. President Lincoln and Secretary of War Cameron are vigorously at work reorganizing a powerful army. More men are to be raised, and a number of regulars, veterans, who accepted within six hours. Gen. McClellan is expected here today. Latest reports are that Gen. Tyler and his command are still at Centreville. It develops that at the battle of Manassas a large number of members of congress and civilians were on the battle field, and their flight added to the confusion of the rebels.

CAIRO, Ill.—Estimates by the rebels of their loss at Manassas puts it at 3,000 killed and wounded.

EDITORIAL.—Laying aside all that may be said in regard to the condition and preparation of the army which Gen. McDowell commanded to meet the rebel forces under Beauregard, the rebels have been compelled to admit that the immediate cause of defeat was the failure of Gen. Patten to cooperate with McDowell. Had he obeyed Gen. Scott's instructions "to engage Johnston's division at whatever odds," to follow and harass his retreat, and to prevent his junction with the army at Manassas, and to attack him at the time the rebels in front—were ready, had this been done the result of the battle would have been victory instead of defeat.

STILLWATER, Minn.—Coleman and James Younger, after their twenty-five years in the state prison, will begin work as salesmen of grave stones.

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—The Benders were squatters on land in the western part of Leavenworth county, Kansas. They kept a small wayside inn with a saloon attachment. Here travelers often put up for the night. The dooms of the travelers was sealed as soon as they crossed the Bender's door. The Benders became so numerous that an investigation followed and a series of bloodless crimes was unearthed that stand without a rival in criminal history. Eleven bodies were dug up on the place.

DUCE DEMANDS RICHES, POWER FOR NEW ITALY

Says U. S. Can Realize Rome's Hopes Best.

BY P. H. WINNER.

ROME, July 23.—(AP)—Fascist Italy must expand or suffocate, Premier Mussolini today asserted, but her expansion in no way presents a threat to the peace of the world.

"We are thirsting for power, for riches, and for the prosperity so long denied us," the Fascist premier said. "But our imperialism presents no threat to the world's peace. Surely the American people, whose commercial and economic empire stretches over the whole world, can understand and sympathize with young Italy's needs to expand culturally and economically beyond her borders."

U. S. Similar to Italy.

"Paradoxical as it may seem, there is a distinct resemblance between the development of Italy during the last decade and the United States during the second half of the nineteenth century."

"Despite the tremendous differences in historical traditions and temperaments of the two peoples, there is a clear parallel, for example, between your civil war and our recent economic civil war."

"The American government resembles the Fascist state more than any liberal democratic government of Europe. Popular sovereignty is tempered by strong governmental authority. Universal suffrage elects the government, but cannot interfere with its work, as is unfortunately the case in European democracies."

"Your pioneering period necessarily produced imperialism. So must ours. The difference between our imperialisms is explained by the fundamental differences between two nations and peoples. America had a tradition of freedom, Italy has one of enslavement to foreigners."

Must Expand or Suffocate.

"The two nations have much in common. Both are young, healthy, and full of self-confidence and determination to possess strength and prosperity. Our soil is not rich, but whatever it contains we are determined to utilize, making science help the strength of our arms. Our cultural heritage is among the richest in the world; our national vitality is tremendous; our thirst for riches and prosperity cannot be denied."

"Our imperialism, like yours, is not a threat to world peace. Americans should see the injustice of accusing us of militarism. You, safe across the Atlantic, keep your army, navy, and air forces ready to resist attack and to meet any insult to your national honor. We, in the midst of centuries old hatred, and having just won our independence after generations of slavery surely cannot be criticized for protecting ourselves and keeping our sons prepared."

Italy Defies All Enemies.

"Italy had imposed upon her by force friends the idea that she was weak and doomed to permanent dependency; that subjection to the insults of the world was her destiny. She had doctors caring only for the man for the health of the patient. For generations these scoundrels kept down the will power of our people, allying them to be the prey of stronger nations, the butt of the world's contempt."

"Fascism has stepped in to prove that the part of so many woeful centuries is a lie. Italy is strong enough and ready to maintain herself against all enemies at home and abroad. We are committed to a war to the death against liberalism and democracy because they are the tools of our enemies. They have digested, ill suited to our temperament, and at variance with our traditions, virtually have destroyed the moral fruits of our war for independence and have nearly succeeded in nullifying our victory against Austria in 1918."

Vices of Parliamentarism.

"Italy added to them the vices of parliamentarism, worse than the rest of the brood put together. The Italian parliamentary system consisted of talking lengthily and doing nothing; proclaiming fine phrases and satisfying personal ambition. Bureaucracy engorged all government and the executive was in a position of non-existent power. When the Italian nation won her great victory of the Piave and Vittorio Veneto, the liberal government almost threw away the spiritual fruits of the victory. It did surrender the most material advantages."

M. V. L. Spends $10,000.

While the general scope of their work seems strikingly similar organizations like the Citizens' Association, Civic Federation and the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency which spends $30,000 a year and concentrates on questions of administration and the expenditure of public funds, it is claimed they do little duplication of work.

M. V. L. Spends $10,000.

The Municipal Voters' League which was organized in 1896 to combat the gray wolves in the city council and which has since devoted its energies to watching the council, reporting its activities and advocating the election of aldermen it deems honest and capable, spends $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

It has never been the endorsement of the Association of Commerce for the solicitation of funds. Like the L. V. L. it regards its work as sufficiently important to warrant publication as news and depends largely on newspaper publicity for existence.

The outstanding moral uplifters of Chicago are not to be found in the Association of Commerce, but in endorsed organizations. These are the Anti-Saloon league and the Better Government association, which the old time reformers believe have put the whole reform business in bad by their tactics and bigotry.

The B. G. A., which came into notice some months ago when its secretary, Mr. E. J. Davis, was disclosed, haughtily defies the world to find out where it gets its money, how much it gets or where the money goes. Its superintendent, E. J. Davis, who couldn't even get along with Scott McBride in the Anti-Saloon league, had a short answer in reply to questions about his organization.

$1,365,220 Since 1920.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, admitted in Washington recently that the Illinois organization had received $1,365,220 since 1920. Mr. Safford, the league's Illinois superintendent, said $180,000 was spent here last year. The Anti-Saloon league was organized in 1893.

Investigation shows that the churches make the most fertile fields for the moral reformers. Church members are more prone to accept the reformers' claims as face value and contribute.

As Mr. Tyler, president of both the Anti-Vice league and the Citizens' Welfare league, says, "Church members are the best customers."

The Anti-Vice league, organized in 1903, devotes its time chiefly, Mr. Tyler says, to showing those who indulge in liquor, vice and crime the error of their ways. The Citizens' Welfare league, an auxiliary established in 1916, gives "better moral protection" to persons in need, he said. Neither organization discloses the amount of its collections or expenditures.

Illinois Vigilantes Active.

While not listed by the Association of Commerce the Illinois Vigilance association, according to the Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent, spends about $15,000 a year. Its agents lead raids on vice resorts, war on literature and pictures they deem indecent and lecture on white slavery and social diseases.

Mr. Tyler, president of both the Anti-Vice league and the Citizens' Welfare league, says, "Church members are the best customers."

BOOKS

Desert Trek Forms Fascinating Theme for Mrs. Rinehart

"Nomad's Land," by Mary Roberts Rinehart (Doran).
A companion piece to "Beau Sabreur" there is "Nomad's Land," by Mrs. Rinehart. She and Dr. Rinehart trekked through the desert that forms the background of the thrillers. They had experiences that will undoubtedly blossom in a tale of her own, but the sights and sounds of the desert are the same in both the books.

"Nomad's Land" is a series of papers—that they are rather than anything so formal as papers—about trips in which Mrs. Rinehart was the prima donna, and some of them are so fascinating that they sound like grand opera as compared to most of the stories in the book.

The characters are the same in both the books. "Conservation of the Family," by Paul Popken (Williams & Wilkins).

"The New Dispensation," by Captain Belter ("The Newer Dispensation Publishing Co.).

"Letters of Louise Imogen Guiney," edited by Grace Guiney, two vols. (Harpers).

"The Great Brighton Mystery," by J. S. Fletcher (Knopf).

"Little Lucia's School," by Mabel L. Robinson (Dutton).

"Little Gray Doors," by Alexandra Woods (Milton, Bradley).

"My Antonia," by Willa Cather.

"Short Talks With the Dead and Others," by Hilaire Belloc (Harpers).

"Faking It Again," by Sir Francis Younghusband (Houghton Mifflin).

"Enchanted Trials of Glacier Park," by Agnes C. Laut (McBride).

"Boston in Seven Days," by C. R. Atcham (McBride).

"The Garbage Man," by John Dos Passos (Harpers).

"Captain Fracasse," by Theophile Gautier (Appleton).

A new edition of the translation of one of the most famous, if not one of the best known, French classic has been brought out, "Captain Fracasse." With the world's passion for historical novels, it should not miss this tale of the days of Louis XIII and Richelieu—the days of the famous "Three Musketeers."

"Democrats Poke Fun at Economy Claims of G. O. P."

They Quote Warren and Madden.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—How the Democrats propose to attack the Republican economy claims was indicated in a statement issued by the Democratic national committee today dissecting the reviews of the appropriation situation recently made public by Senator Warren (Rep., Wyo.), chairman of the senate appropriations committee, and Representative Madden (Rep., Ill.), chairman of the house appropriations committee.

62 General Agencies.

The major portion of social work in Chicago, according to the Council of Social Agencies, is performed by 38 general welfare agencies, 24 general health agencies, 110 hospitals, 73 dispensaries, 55 infant welfare centers, 34 agencies for family relief and rehabilitation, 148 child caring agencies, 70 boarding clubs and hotels, 29 employment and vocational guidance agencies, 40 homes and emergency shelter for adults, 49 summer camps and 60 agencies for civic, legal and protective work. The reform group comes under the latter classification.

The Association of Commerce, which requires audits, financial statements and similar data before giving its approval to any organization that solicits contributions, has imposed 236. In 1919, the number of endorsed agencies was 143. They had a total income then of $268,000, and capital and endowment accounts of $25,000,000.

These same agencies in 1924 had a total income of $17,650,000, with capitals and endowments of $49,000,000.

With 93 more organizations endorsed since 1919, the total income of the 236 is $24,001,000, and they reported an aggregate of $65,000,000 in their capital accounts.

Give Them Credit.

Senator Warren and Representative Madden admit the big jump, very likely thinking it better to come right out with it, for the longer they wait the more embarrassing it would be.

"Despite an immense increase of appropriations for 1927, the administration estimates a surplus of $185,000 for the fiscal year, which goes to show that the democrats were right in the recent congress when they fought for a greater reduction in taxes than was granted."

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Harold C. Lee, 16 years old, colored, 3800 Rhodes, was accidentally shot in the right thigh yesterday when a revolver which James Stewart, 12, 3763 South Park, also colored, was showing him was discharged.

She hasn't a moral about her!

And that led to one of the most brilliant scenes in modern fiction—the hearing of Marjorie Ferrar's libel suit against Fleur Mont. And yet, in her heart, Marjorie Ferrar knew that she would lose her case if she were to tell the court her real code:

"Not to let a friend down; not to give a man away; not to funk; to do things differently from other people; to be always on the go; not to be stuffy; not to be dull."

THOMPSON URGES U. S. SUPPORT FOR FILIPINO SCHOOLS

Finds Facilities Far Short of Demand.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., July 23.—Addressing students today at the high school of Calapan, capital of Mindoro, Col. Carmi Thompson, President Coolidge's personal investigator in the Philippines, told them that their handwriting is better than that of children in America.

It was explained that malaria not only causes fifteen per cent of the deaths in the Philippines but reduces the efficiency of the natives, this being one of the causes for the laziness with which they recently were charged.

boards and in your note books is that your writing of English is better than we do in America."

Favors U. S. Financial Aid.

Col. Thompson now is inclined to recommend actual financial support by the United States for Philippine schools.

He has been told repeatedly that the facilities of the schools are far short of the demands for admission. This is particularly true of the island of Mindoro, which is one of the poorest provinces, and where there are nearly 9,000 school children. In one school 380 children are crowded into a house with one room, the classes being separated by screens.

Details for admission to the schools is as great as examinations are held and only those which qualify are admitted.

"Beau Sabreur" Has Thrills, Love, Sheiks Among Its Merits

By FANNY BUTCHER.
"Beau Sabreur," by Percival Christopher Wren (Stokes).

No novel this year has had the eager gallery awaiting its tee-off that "Beau Sabreur" has. It happens on the twenty-eighth. No novel perhaps in the last decade had the amazing history that was "Beau Geste." A year after it was published it was more popular than it was while it was stillizzling, and that is almost unheard of in a novel of adventure, in which the story is the thing. Literally thousands upon thousands read and are still reading it. "Beau Sabreur" is, in a way, a sequel to "Beau Geste," but it is a complete and thrilling tale in itself.

The trouble with such books is that they can't be written about at all. They are in a class by themselves. They are stories, pure and simple, and nobody really cares how they are written. So you can't talk about their literary qualities, and to mention their lack of them would be to blame the corner. "Beau Sabreur" is learned in all of the so-called "seven languages." (Incidentally, I have never known what the seven were, but have you ever heard of any one who didn't "speak seven languages" if he were articulate in more than two?)

The ideal of them all, of course, is "The Three Musketeers," which, besides its story, has a certain whimsical and sexual flavor. But "Beau Sabreur" is also about a member of the Foreign Legion. It has the "Boule de Peuplade," whom you remember from the previous book. It is concerned with African sheiks, an American girl, duty with a capital D, much bloodletting and love. It is another "Sheik" without the raping and with excitement and battle and surprise under every grain of sand.

But there, again, one cannot write about it. For to do so the story would be told in full. The suspense would be to tell the hours of joy which await the devotees of Capt. Wren. Therefore, no more about the story.

There is one publisher—not the one who does this book—who is printing in the back of his mystery stories extracts from forthcoming books. Like the samples of thrills that the movies show before the arrival of the main feature, with passion, etc., "Beau Sabreur" ends so abruptly that you almost look for a sample of the thrills of its sequel, for there is certain to be a sequel. As they say in our local movie emporium about quiet, the patrons of the Beau Geste-Sabreur thrillers demand it.

"Making of Americans"

Is Not as Vivid as Was "Three Lives"

By Gertrude Stein (A. and C. Boni).

I had hoped before this to have read

(or tried to) Gertrude Stein's "The Making of Americans." But it is a book which I have not yet been able to understand. It is only because it is as bulky as "Ulysses," but because to understand Gertrude Stein is as hard a job as for a beginning student in German to try to understand "Also Sprach Zarathustra"—than which experience I can remember none so harrowing.

She is the most modern of them all, and those who are devoted to her are wholly so. I have never felt that her later work equaled her earlier, but she is the reason for its being the ideal. Most of them don't even pretend to have humor, and as for a point of view that would spoil the story, the world thinks.

Thus, "Beau Sabreur" is written in exactly the same manner as "Beau Geste," and that is enough recommendation—or warning, if you don't like "Beau Geste"—for anybody.

It is also about a member of the Foreign Legion. It has the "Boule de Peuplade," whom you remember from the previous book.

It is concerned with African sheiks, an American girl, duty with a

"Enchanted Trails of Glacier Park,"

by ALICE C. LANE (McBride).

For the Glacier Parkers there is a new book by Alice Lane. It is a super guide book, for not only does it describe the park, but it gives the historic panorama of the trails. It makes you just a little sick at heart these days, sewed into canyons and tall buildings by an unkinked fate. The pictures alone in this book would cause a riot on a hot day, if as the old saying goes, "birds ride high, and the air is rare." habited by "An iceberg ptarmigan" for instance. There is a chapter on the old Oregon trail to finish things off.

True Love Wins in This Novel of Girl Who Is Persistent

"Elizabeth's Tower," by Margaret Weymouth Jackson (Bobbs Merrill).

"Elizabeth's Tower" is not, as it appears on the jacket, a juvenile, but the story of an orphan who had everything against her and yet got what she wanted. What she wanted was a man who was a county figure, a bully, and a charmer, and a periodical drunkard. She met him first when she was ten. She is about to marry him when the story closes and she is eighteen or so.

It is a story full of the kind of sentiment that the world at large adores. The heroine is poor and has a sick mother to care for. She works in a restaurant. Later she is a bookkeeper to a wealthy bachelor, who asks her to marry him and whom she refuses because the man she loves comes in at just that moment. The hero is entangled with a very wealthy and beautiful woman, but the entanglement is not a serious one, purely, one might say, social. The woman makes a scene about it, but Elizabeth convinces her that the hero is not in love with her any more than he is in love with the other her.

The hero starts on a spree and the heroine sticks so closely to him that he hasn't a second to get a drink. She wears herself out trailing him about, but finally succeeds in getting him to promise not to take a drink. Then she says she doesn't want ever to see him again, goes home, and to sleep, and wakes up ready to get married. It is a "triumph of true love" story. For that kind of thing it is better than the average.

Asked by the editor of a popular weekly who is his favorite pirate, Lord Dunsany confessed that his favorite pirate is still alive:

"For years I wrote, and nobody paid any attention to my books, and then one day a firm of Americans published a collection that they were making of the world's best stories. And away all my stories sailed in the splendid company of illustrious fellow captives. So great a compliment reminded me of a high-way man of the best period rather than of a pirate. And then one day the firm A. and B. as I shall call them, seem to have quarreled, for B suddenly disappeared, and A. never heard of him again, and the firm became the firm of A. A. then, is my favorite pirate. I met him years later in New York, a most charming man. He showed no more regret for the use he had made of my stories than he showed remorse for B. He spoke of my tales as one might speak of seacoast cities, who appreciated their beauty over the water and loved to loot them at dawn."

A. E. BOURNIQUE, PIONEER DANCE MASTER, IS DEAD

Founded Famous Chicago
Academy in 1865.

(Picture on back page.)
Augustus Eugene Bourniqe, native of France, who established a dancing academy in 1865 that speedily became a gathering place for Chicago society, died yesterday at his home, 559 Surf street.

Mr. Bourniqe was 83 years old and had been a resident of Chicago since 1857. For a few years he was engaged in commercial pursuits first in his father's piano-guitar business and later in dry goods and clothing stores. During his spare time he practiced dancing, with the ultimate intention of starting his academy.

Undaunted by Loss in Fire.

In the project he was assisted by Mrs. Bourniqe, who was Elizabeth Ann Corning of Chicago. In 1871 his building was destroyed by the great Chicago fire, but he immediately built the misfortune he erected a larger academy at 23rd street and Indiana avenue.

Here the first families of the city sent their daughters and sons to learn the grace of the ballroom. Among the pupils Mr. Bourniqe taught were Gen. Phil Sheridan and his wife, Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Mrs. Peter Parker and his sons, Franklin McVeagh, Marshall Field and many others socially prominent.

Retires from Teaching in 1918.

On June 14, Mr. and Mrs. Bourniqe celebrated the thirty-third anniversary of their marriage. The veteran dancing teacher retired from active teaching in 1918, his work being taken over by his son, Alvar Louis Bourniqe.

Mrs. Bourniqe, a daughter, Elizabeth May Bourniqe, and two sons, Alvar and Eugene Augustus Bourniqe, the real estate dealer, survive him. Funeral services, it was announced, will be private.

CHINA REDS TAKE KEY TOWN TO CITY OF HANKOW

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

SHANGHAI, China, July 23.—Canton reports the strategically important town of Yochow, in northern Hunan province, has been captured by southern forces, opening the way for the attack on Hankow. The reports say the northern forces are retreating to Hankow.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, Kuomintang Communist party leader, from Canton for the front, announced that he expected the capture of Shanhai within a month. The seriousness of the situation from the northern standpoint is indicated by frantic appeals to Marshal Wu Peifu to relinquish the northern campaign against the Kuominchun (National People's party) and take personal charge of the campaign against the Reds.

Reports from Changshu, the Hunan capital, say that Cantonese captors are establishing a so-called soviet régime, similar to that of the Canton government, including the appointment of Russian advisers.

INDIANS ANGRY AT U. S. STOPPING TRIBAL DANCES

Superior, Wis., July 23.—(AP)—Refused by the government to permit northern Wisconsin Indians to perform their tribal dances, they brought about the situation with Mr. Philip Gordon of Centuria, Wis., Catholic priest and full blooded Chippewa.

"Many of the Indians are in a fighting mood," Father Gordon said. "An Indian war would have resulted in Wisconsin not so long ago if the Indians had received the same treatment at the hands of the government as they have now."

Trouble may result, Father Gordon said, at a meeting of the Indians to be held Sunday. "Intense feeling has been aroused against the Indian agent here who stopped the dances under orders from Washington," he said.

As far as last Sunday, the tribesmen were undecided, but refused. The Indians have the strength of the people of Hayward and hundreds of tourists who enjoy the ancient dances."

A number of boys from the Stanford playground across the street beat out the flames and Planta was taken to St. Luke's hospital.

BARGAIN HUNTERS GIVEN A JOLT AT ALIMONY BUREAU

Serve Only Worthy, Director Rules.

Closed divorce courts notwithstanding, the alimony bureau in the county building has been doing a fire sale business since its opening on July 12. Since the opening day the bureau, under the direction of Miss Virginia Seward, has been swamped with all varieties of unhappy married women, from mothers of large families to able bodied flappers wives.

So great is the popularity that the staff has been increased fourfold and a new suite of offices may be opened in September to house this most popular branch of the social service bureau.

Not that the voice failed to register, which it did, for at every moment one could feel its power, enjoy its richness and beauty in all the registers; not that the tempos were slightly slow for an ideal radio recital. Not that many of the songs and arias were overly familiar. Not that.

The trouble was that the announcer failed utterly to arise to the occasion and make the recital a thing of distinction. The songs were introduced with the same wordy description that we are already too familiar with at this and some other stations. The WLS instrumental trio took up too much time with its selections. All together, what should have been a half hour's recital became one of an hour's length.

It happened that the best musical event was WMAR's broadcast, 8:30 to 9:45, of the public recital at Mandell hall by Esther Dale, a soprano none too well known.

It was instantly recognized that Miss Dale's voice encompasses all the qualities of the first-rate concert singer. The voice is mellown, full, "covered" but likeable, with a wide range of interpretation.

In my mind I hear universal applause for the program by the Magic Carpet, WGN—N from New York, 9 to 9:30. Both the classical and popular numbers were played brilliantly as though by a brass band, only infinitely more colorfully.

On Bargain Seeking.

From now on, only women with little children will be served at the bureau. It's surprising the number of well dressed, jaded, and prospected-looking women who, combining free alimony service, Miss Sanford said. To this she intends to give the same answer as to young able bodied women without dependent children.

"This is a service maintained for women ill or ill health or burdened with the support of little ones and unable to pay for regular alimony collecting service," Miss Sanford said. "I have no patience with bargain seekers."

WANTED TO VISIT ILL FATHER, SAYS CAPTURED FELON

Duchowski, Back at Joliet, Tells Story.

"I had received a letter from my father in Poland that he could not live much longer. I wanted to see him once more alive, so I schemed to make a get-away. I am sorry murder was committed in the escape, but I guess that can't be helped now."

Thus did Charles Duchowski explain yesterday the plot through which he and six other convicts on May 5 murdered Deputy Warden Peter Klein and made their escape from the new Stateville prison near Joliet. Dutchy, as he is known, the chief prisoner, was brought back yesterday from Nogales, Ariz., where he was arrested while trying to make his way into Mexico a week ago. He was questioned by State's Attorney Hjalmar Rehn of Will county.

Only One at Liberty.

The return of the young Pole brought the number of the escaped convicts up to six. James Price, Chicago stick-up man, is the only one left at liberty.

Dutchy's story of his wanderings after his escape was an interesting one, the authorities said. He spent the first two weeks of his liberty within a few miles of Joliet, a few miles of the prison walls, wandering and lost, walking in circles when he thought he was walking away from the prison, while sheriff and other officers hunted him.

Once, it is said, when he was approaching a lone town, he asked a farmer on the road, "What place is that?" and then realized he had been walking in a circle when the man replied, "It's Joliet."

Rode Past Prison Walls.

"So I came on into Joliet," he said. "I figured I would be as safe there as anywhere else. I stayed for a couple of hours. I panhandled some money on the downtown streets and stood for an hour on one of the business corners. Then I took an electric car for Chicago, riding past the walls of the old prison."

Duchowski said he came to Chicago, then went successively to Milwaukee Park, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, and Washington state. From there he went down to Sacramento, San Francisco, and Los Angeles, Cal. He said he tried to get into Mexico because he believed he could get out of Mexico on a ship, while he would have failed to get out of the United States.

Kansans in Vienna Seek Own Cure for Farm Woe

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) VIENNA, July 23.—Harvey Harley Motter, a representative of the United States treasury, from Kansas, arrived in Vienna today with thirty-eight Kansans. He said he had received a large number of letters from Kansans in Austria asking him to speak to any other country of Europe. Mr. Motter has a scheme whereby he feels that Kansans can give its surplus of wheat to Austria in exchange for Austrian commodities by a preferential tariff. He will discuss the proposition with the Austrian minister of finance tomorrow.

CIVIC FEDERATION WARNS OF DANGER TO POLICE FUNDS

Move On to Boost Old Timers' Pensions.

A warning that the pension funds of the city and park police are in danger of being looted by a move to boost the pensions of retired officers to an exorbitant figure was sounded yesterday by the Civic Federation of Chicago, whose members sent a resolution to civic clubs and city officials, the federation sharply attacks the proposal, which it declares, would "open the door wide to political abuse" and shake the financial foundations of the funds.

Taxpayers Affected.

"The rank and file of public employees must depend upon these reserve funds for pensions in old age," declares the bulletin. "The taxpaying public (which supplies nearly two-thirds of the funds) also is affected by the movement."

Under the present interpretation of the pension law, $2,600 is the maximum amount of annual salary upon which pensions can be based, retired employees receiving percentages of that amount in accordance with the length of their service.

"Fourteen city police captains retired since Jan. 1, 1922," the bulletin continues, "are said to be preparing to seek a court interpretation to compel the city police pension board to pay them half the full salary ($3,700) which they were receiving at the time of retirement instead of the percentage of $2,600 to which the law entitles them."

Park Police Have Plans.

The former captain's plan to base their claim right on the interpretation of James Brown, a former corporation counsel, who held that the $2,600 limit is not stipulated in the statutes, it is said. This opinion was reversed by Corporation Counsel Busch.

"Also, the park police pension fund trustees will act early in August," the bulletin says, "upon a request to grant Capt. E. E. Richards an annuity of one-half of the $6,000 salary which he receives. This is not required instead of the percentage of $2,600 because of his unusually long period of admittedly fine service clearly entitles him."

"To disregard the maximum salary definition in fixing pensions would open the door wide to political abuse and to a future looting of pension trust funds far worse than now threatening."

CORONER'S JURY PRAISES COPPER WHO WAS KILLED

(Picture on back page.) A coroner's jury investigating the shooting of Patrolman Theodore Anderson on the 20th floor of the avenue station, killed Thursday night by a Negro, yesterday returned a verdict of "Death in the customary performance of duty. We commend his bravery." The jury also praised the courage of Sergt. Albert Booth, Sergt. Ignatius Sheehan, and Patrolman Thaddeus Coakley of the detective bureau, who cornered the slayer, Nathaniel Davis, 3122 Prairie avenue, under a porch and, after an interchange of shots, killed him. Each was recommended for extra compensation.

LOREE TO OFFER MERGER PROJECT TO I. C. C. TODAY

BY O. A. MATHER.

The plan of L. F. Lorée for a great southwestern railroad consolidation is scheduled to be presented to the Interstate commerce commission today. The two year old project of aligning the Kansas City Southern, the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and the St. Louis-Southern was approved by the directors of the Kansas City Southern yesterday. It previously had been accepted by the directors of the other roads.

The plan contemplates the formation of a unified group rather than a full consolidation. The result would be a new southwestern system with about 7,000 miles of track, 1,000 cars and total assets of about $400,000,000. In working out the project, the Kansas City Southern, of which Mr. Lorée is chairman, last year purchased enough stock of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas to obtain working control and also received control of the St. Louis-Southern by purchasing a block of stock held by the Rock Island.

Second Lorée Project.

The present plan is the second big consolidation projected by Mr. Lorée, who also is president of the Denver and Hudson. A week ago Mr. Lorée filed an application with the commission for permission for the Delaware and Hudson to lease the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh for 99 years. He did not state how the two roads would be connected, but his earlier plan called for taking the Wabash and either the Lackawanna or the Lehigh Valley, and building a new line across Pennsylvania.

This project would result in another great trunk line between New York and Chicago. In the event of both Mr. Lorée's projects being worked out, railroads believe his final ambition will be to form the first transcontinental system by gaining trackage rights to the Pacific coast. The Wabash would serve as a connecting link between Chicago and St. Louis.

Rival of Missouri Pacific.

The new southwestern system would rival the Missouri Pacific which recently completed its merger project, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, the Island-Saint Louis and San Francisco combination, which now rests with the commerce commission. The commission yesterday authorized the Atchison to acquire control by purchase of stock and leases of the New Mexico Central, a 166 mile line between Santa Fé and Torrance, N. M. The commission also authorized the Southern Pacific to build 114 miles of new line in Texas.

The project is a further delay for the New Plate merger, appeared yesterday when Greenville Kline, chairman of the New Plate railroad executive committee, announced that the directors probably could not meet before September to act on the revised plan. Although the new terms have been approved in principle by the Erie directors, another meeting of the board will be required before final assent can be given to the Van Sweringen proposal because of concessions granted to other participating roads.

WALL STREET NOTES

NEW YORK. July 23.—(AP)—Extremes characterized today's commodity market, with price movements ranging from present record high to record low. Heavy losses were suffered by some of the oils which had been in progress for a fortnight or longer appears to have been completed, at least temporarily.

Modest gains were recorded some of the pipe lines, while Weyerhaeuser, Panco, and each moved up over 2 points. Mexican Panuco was active and strong on reports that its subsidiary, the English Oil company, had completed a 15,000 barrel well in the northern district of Tampico, Mex.

Motor vehicles showed small fractionals with the establishment of a new 1024 high by federal and extension of the recent advance in Durango among the few features. Coal shares were firm. Baking show improved further improvement. General had reached a point. Artificial silk shares were heavy.

Public utilities were mixed. American Gas and Electric and American Light and Traction advanced about 2 points, but United Gas Improvement continued to yield on a trap.

Midland States Products announced profit before federal taxes of $1,464,658 for the first half of 1926, compared with $1,418,373 in the same period of 1925. For the second quarter of 1926 profit was $896,592 before taxes, against $762,013 in the second quarter last year.

7 Get Subpoe
Insull to Tall

BY OSCAR HEWITT
Only seven witnesses have been served with subpoenas to appear tomorrow morning for the investigation of the Illinois primary election of April 13, last. Two witnesses whom subpoenas have been issued have not been served. One, former Mayor William Hale, who is spending a vacation in Eugene, Ore., his former residence, upon the western route, William Randolph Hearst, the State's Attorney Robert E. Lee, who is having a holiday in Wisconsin. The offices have promised to notify that subpoenas are awaiting them, and it is expected they will appear soon, before the committee headed by Senator A. Reed of Missouri.

Senate Candidates Summary
The seven upon whom subpoenas have been issued are as follows:

Frank L. Smith, Republican for United States senator.

Charles Willoughby, secretary to Senator William B. McKinley.

George E. Brennan, Democrat for United States senator.

Samuel Insull, head of the Commonwealth Edison company, gas and electric roads and sundry other utilities.

Edward H. Wright, member of Illinois Commerce commission, former Republican leader of Senate in the second ward.

Charles V. Barrett, member of review and leader of the Cowe-Barrett faction of Cool Republicans.

Ray O. West, treasurer of national Republican committee, prominent leader in the Democratic Republican faction in the Senate.

A subpoena has also been issued to Senator William B. McKinley, but he has not been served, owing to his absence from Washington and inability to Chicago at present.

Pennsylvania's to Appoint
It may be that the first witness called by the Pennsylvania will testify about the enormous expenditures in the Pennsylvania instead of Illinois.

F. Cunningham of Philadelphia was active in the Vare campaign but could not be located while the Pennsylvania was in session in Washington. He has since been served with subpoena commanding him "to appear and answer set aside to appear" tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, again, the senators in question being of Mr. Cunningham's party. He has been told of theirs and is obliged to wait around for a hour in the inquiry when nothing else is to do except to him explain.

Each of the seven witnesses has been told by Palmer E. Parker, United States marshal at Chicago, to bring with him to the trial what he appears prepared to produce before said committee, including all documents, papers, or promises of money or rewards or other things, including all agreements of understandings calculated or intended to influence the nomination of any person for United States senator.

Documents Are Called
Each of these seven witnesses is commanded to bring with him to the trial what he appears prepared to produce before said committee, including all documents, papers, or promises of money or rewards or other things, including all agreements of understandings calculated or intended to influence the nomination of any person for United States senator.
